

The Myths, the Markets and the Money: Finding Funding for Your Innovative Research

Access SBIR funding for your company, and receive money to support your environmental and energy innovations.

Every year, the federal government offers approximately $2.5 billion in small business funding for technology and science innovations. You can access this R&D money simply by knowing where to look and how to apply for it. Learn all you need to know at this exclusive one-day workshop offered by the University of Pittsburgh Small Business Development Center and featuring the Environmental Protection Agency and the Department of Energy.

At this fast-paced, informative seminar you will:

- Meet leaders of funding programs at federal agencies
- Identify ways your technology can win R&D funding
- Follow a step-by-step guide to applying for federal Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) funding
- Meet nationally recognized SBIR technology consultants Paul Petrovich and Robert Berger, PhD
- Learn about trends in innovation with keynote speaker Daniel J. Desmond, deputy secretary of the Office of Energy and Technology Deployment at the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection

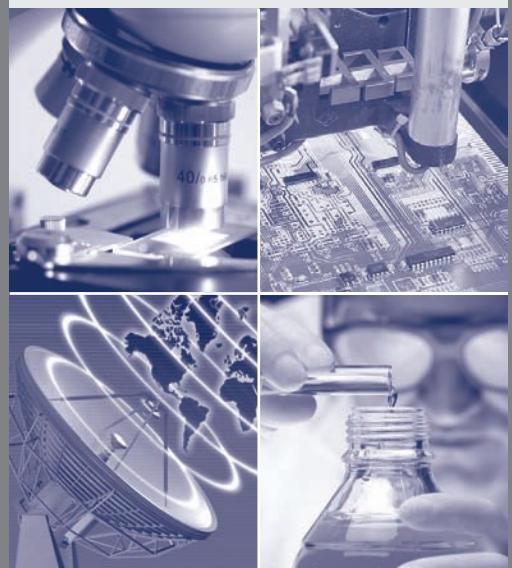

This program is ideal for small, for-profit technology- and science-based firms, as well as for people interested in commercializing their technology and science innovations. Don't miss this unique opportunity to hear funding advice from experts with first-hand experience in granting funding.
